

Protect your Business and Your Data with Ransomware Services

Quote & Buy

Why Does Your Business Need Ransomware Services?

Ransomware attacks cost businesses more than $75 billion each year. Without the proper protections, it is a matter of when, not if you will have an attack on your business.

The cost of a ransomware attack can devastate a company and even potentially put a company out of business. With growing numbers of ransomware attacks every day, no business is immune to them: educational institutions, governments, small companies and Fortune 500 companies have all been attacked successfully.

What is Included in Commercial Ransomware Services?

Assessments

The only way to defend your business against attacks is through a holistic approach. We look at everything from your existing devices and software protections to employee training materials to executive knowledge about ransomware to determine the biggest threats to your security. We make sure that you're training your employees properly, your sensitive data is encrypted and backed up nightly, and you have an effective breach plan in place. If your protocols don't meet our standards, we give you the tools and services necessary to update and enhance them.

Data Protection

Once we've identified your various vulnerabilities, we collaborate with you to protect you, your business, and your employees against a ransomware attack. We can implement industry leading technologies and services to anticipate and identify some attacks before and as they happen, stopping them in their tracks. Our cyber tools and cyber expertise can help keep your software up-to-date, decreasing your threat surface and helping protect your sensitive data.

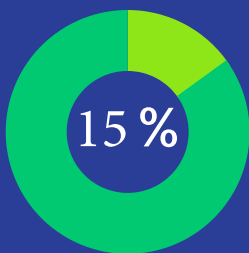

Incident Response

If your business is the victim of a ransomware attack, we help you through the process of responding to the incident. From identifying the type of attack, to involving law enforcement and trained forensics teams, to notifying your customers and recovering lost information, we're with you every step of the way.

Ongoing Support

We offer ongoing support services to help small businesses recover and rebuild in the aftermath of a ransomware attack, while keeping an eye toward preventing attacks in the future. All of our support services are easily accessible to all of our partners and clients through a simple online portal to make sure that wherever you go, you have the support you need.
